“ When I think of Rory, what I remember most was his optimism. He didn't dwell on things that went wrong. He was always talking about things that were going well.

I remember him as a student at Fordham selling all the pot that his brother Gil had smuggled in, in about a half hour and saying 'Well that's enough to pay my tuition'.

After graduation he would rent a loft space somewhere in the Village and have large parties for a few dollars a/head.

I never knew why he stopped medical school in Belgium, he just said vaguely that it wasn't what he expected and then probably talked about how he was using all the science courses he had acquired to transition to wine. And the wine business grew and grew.

Thank you, Rory for being my friend, you will always be remembered.
